

Q: Will the NASA Postdoctoral Program application deadline move from March 1, 2019?

A: NASA is in discussions with USRA to extend the deadline beyond March 1, 2019. Additional information will be provided to the community once a new deadline has been established.

Q: What is the status of the upcoming senior reviews?

A: The due dates for both the Planetary Science and Astrophysics mission proposals have been extended until March 15, 2019 and the reviews will take place in May 2019.

Q: What are the dates for the upcoming Heliophysics Medium Explorers Announcement of Opportunity?

A: The Final Announcement of Opportunity will be released in June 2019 and Step 1 proposals will be due in September 2019.

Q: In the event of a future shutdown, can the Science Mission Directorate provide additional guidance to proposers and grantees?

A: Yes, the Science Mission Directorate will proactively issue a letter to the community providing guidance on how open and future solicitations may be impacted and identifying resources that will be available to the science community during that period.